⌘ SINKING FEELING

The Meltdown sink by WET goes above and beyond the concept of a contemporary bathroom. For starters, a 100 percent recyclable and lightweight polyethylene casing hides all of the supply and drain attachments for a sleek look. The two halogen lights located inside the Meltdown can illuminate the entire bathroom with an orange, yellow, white or black glow. The amplified version of the Meltdown features dual speakers with MP3 or CD player access discreetly mounted underneath the sink. Prices begin at $540; www.wet.co.it

⌘ TILE WITH STYLE

Create stunning light art or accent lighting with Color Kinetics iColor Tile FX, a 2-foot by 2-foot colored light panel, easily mounted on a variety of surfaces. The iColor Tile, which consists of 144 tri-color LED nodes, can be individually or collectively controlled. Perfect for wall and ceiling installations, the iColor Tiles provide a canvas for creating lighting designs, effects, animation and light-enhanced video. Color Kinetics iColor Tile can be used with an iColor Tile Lens, sold separately or installed behind a custom panel. $1,499; www.colorkinetics.com

« WARMING TRENDS

Some recipes work best with a gas cooking surface, while others should use electric. Miele presents a solution to this dilemma with its Combisets. These combination cooktops have units with identical width and depth to create a single, uniform surface, which allows for the units to be placed in any order. The units can be installed individually, allowing consumers to place burners anywhere in the kitchen. Non-fuel units are also available. Prices vary depending on the size and type of unit; visit www.miele.com
